1. What is HASANZ?

- The Health and Safety Association of New Zealand (HASANZ) is an umbrella organisation representing workplace health and safety professions in New Zealand.
- NZISM is a founding member of HASANZ which only organisations, not individuals, can join.
- There is more information about HASANZ here.

2. What is the HASANZ Register?

- The HASANZ Register is a national, online register of verified workplace health and safety professionals.
- The Register provides an incentive that drives improvement in professional standards across the system where both independent consultants and employees/in-house professionals – generalists and specialists – who meet the required competency standards of a HASANZ member association can be listed.
- It will be a one stop shop for businesses to find reliable, quality health and safety advice and services. They can search for free to find providers that offer services across the whole sector. Business can filter these results by business size, location and industry. Searches will yield a list of professionals who can provide the required skills and professional services, including profiles for each. By clicking on the short profile of the people on their shortlist, users will be able to see the long profile for each individual to check out their full credentials and compare their skills and capabilities. It will show if they are a member of a professional body or an organisation whose members provide either specialist or general services.
- The Register is not a replacement for businesses undertaking their own due diligence. Businesses must still check that the person they wish to engage is right for them, as they would before engaging or hiring any new employee or consultant, for instance, by checking references and making preliminary calls to prospects to talk through their service offering.

3. What are the benefits of being on the Register?

- It makes you more employable. Businesses are looking for workplace health and safety professionals with proven, relevant, knowledge and experience and being on the register will show your commitment.
- The Register is a tool to help people find you. If you are not on the HASANZ Register, you may miss out on business/employment.
- The HASANZ Register is about demonstrating your skills and experience to the market and ensuring your good standing among your professional peers. Being on the Register also helps lift professional standards across the sector and increase demand for qualified workplace health and safety advisers who meet competency standards.
- Listing on the HASANZ Register is the bona fide way of demonstrating your value to your employer. It provides assurance that you meet stringent competency standards for your profession.
- Being listed on the HASANZ Register is like having a warrant of fitness to practise as a workplace health and safety professional. Businesses can be confident that people on the HASANZ Register have met the standard of competence required by their professional association.
- Health and safety professionals listed on the Register will be able to use the “HASANZ Registered” quality mark on their business card, letterhead and promotional material to show they have the qualifications and authority to provide reliable advice to businesses.

4. When will the Register be open for applications?

- The Register will be open for applications from Wednesday 13th December.
- In March 2018 the Register will open for business.

5. Who can apply to be on the Register?

- All Independent consultants and employees/in-house professionals who are NZISM members and are currently graded at Graduate or above are able to apply to be listed on the Register.
- You must however meet the NZISM HASANZ Register Standards which includes ensuring you are maintaining your CPD via the NZISM or IOSH MyCPD system.

6. What are the NZISM HASANZ Registration Standards required to be on the Register?

- The registration standards comprise of the requirements to list on the HASANZ Register as a workplace health and safety professional.
- These requirements cover qualifications, experience, continuing professional development, ethics, good character and insurance. They include application requirements (which need to be met by individuals at the time of applying) and ongoing requirements (which need to be met on an ongoing basis to maintain HASANZ registration).
- The standards for the Register of the individual organisations have been jointly reviewed and approved by the HASANZ Leadership Team. HASANZ has also done checks to ensure that the organisations have suitable systems and processes in place to assess the competence of their members, manage complaints and take required disciplinary action when things go wrong.
- You can view the full NZISM HASANZ Registration Standards here.

7. What if I don't meet the NZISM HASANZ Registration Standards?

- You will need to upgrade your skills to meet required standards by putting a plan in place. You may need to do further training or professional development to meet the criteria. The HASANZ Register is all about businesses having confidence in the competence of health and safety professionals.
- You can view a list of the qualifications and experience required for accreditation on the NZISM membership page – note you need to be accredited at Graduate level or above to apply for the HASANZ Register. If you have a number of years of experience but no formal generalist OHS qualification, you can consider reaching Graduate level by the recognition of prior learning route – further details here.
